Here to Help

The significant challenges facing nursing homes have only been exacerbated by the pandemic.

Throughout this challenging time, the IPRO Quality Improvement Network-Quality Improvement Organization (QIN-QIO) team assisted hundreds of nursing homes with coaching; education on topics including infection control, COVID-19 strategies, vaccination, telehealth, and workforce support; and best practice sharing.

Who We Are

We provide assistance at no cost to you.

As the the quality improvement organization contracted under the CMS QIN-QIO program, we are physicians, nurses, psychologists, pharmacists, administrators, patients, caregivers, quality improvement, and change experts working collaboratively to improve the quality of health care.

Participation Gives You Access To

- web-based education and engagement opportunities;
- curated resources and tools;
- customized coaching to help you address your most pressing challenges;
- forums to engage residents, families, and community members;
- data dashboards and customized reports that will inform and drive your quality efforts.

Let's Collaborate

Working with the QIO means getting free help with:

- re-focusing your internal quality programs;
- reinvigorating and strengthening your teams;
- connecting with other providers and community-based organizations to enhance care and safety.

Our team will help you identify focus areas that align with your needs:

increasing immunization acceptance;

improving care transitions to reduce unnecessary hospital use;

providing infection control education to reduce healthcare-acquired infections;

improving public health emergency preparedness;

decreasing opioid-related and other adverse drug events.
